

15 July 2020

COVID vaccine trials about to start in Barts Health!

Please forward this e-mail to friends and family who may be interested

We all have the opportunity to join COVID-19 vaccine development — please help!

Barts Health NHS Trust has been identified as a site for the delivery of several vaccine trials to find effective vaccines to protect people from COVID-19. These trials are likely to begin in August. The trials will recruit different age groups. The timelines to recruit are much shorter than in other trials so it is very important to identify people who are keen to know more and to potentially participate. If you would like to participate then please email covidresearch.bartshealth@nhs.net stating that you are willing to be contacted and also your age and whether you are working or shielding.

Professor Chloe Orkin, Lead for COVID -19 studies for Barts Health, tells us,

"An effective vaccine is what we all need. Great strides are being made on this and we want to make sure our staff and the population of East London are part of this. Barts Health has been leading the way on research and understanding of the disease. There are over 3000 people who have entered COVID -19 studies so far — a reflection of the willingness and desire to contribute."

TrialsConnect
<https://TrialsConnect.org>

You are receiving this e-mail because you have attended TrialsConnect events at the William Harvey Clinical Research Centre or elsewhere and/or subscribed to our mailing list.
Unsubscribe • Update Email Address